Team USA Athletes Return to San Francisco Following Winter Olympics (From NBCBayArea.com)

The Olympic flame may have been extinguished in South Korea, but the United States athletes are bringing home plenty of spirit.

About 100 Team USA athletes arrived at San Francisco International Airport Monday following a 10 and a half hour flight. Most athletes are still on Cloud 9 after their Olympic experience.

"It feels so good to be back in California," gold-medalist snowboarder Jamie Anderson said.

The Lake Tahoe snowboarder returned to SFO with a much heavier bag after winning both a silver and gold medal in Pyeongchang.

"I want to get to the ocean and jump in the water and take in that Pacific Ocean vibe," Anderson said of what she plans to do next.

Figure skater Adam Rippon was also one of the Olympic athletes to arrive at SFO Monday. Rippon, who earned a bronze medal at the Winter Olympics, said he hopes he inspired others to pursue their dreams.

Meanwhile, Anderson said she was headed to Los Angeles to tape the Ellen DeGeneres show. Her interview on the show is scheduled to air at 4 p.m. Wednesday on NBC Bay Area.

San Francisco International Airport to Launch Bike Medic Program

(From the San Francisco Examiner, 2/24/2018)

San Francisco International Airport plans to launch a bike medic program as soon as next month, the San Francisco Examiner has learned.

The airport is partnering with the San Francisco Fire Department to bring bike medics to airport terminals and parking areas, where they can navigate traffic better and coast through terminals to quickly reach those in need. The medics could also reduce the number of times the Fire Department has to send a fire truck or ambulance to respond to incidents, freeing up resources for other uses.

Doug Yakel, a spokesperson for SFO, said the program is meant “to increase response time to medical issues inside the terminal buildings.”

“Much like [San Francisco Police Department] patrols, personnel can respond faster inside the facility on a bike compared to driving a vehicle, parking, and entering the facility,” Yakel said.

Paramedics will ride mountain bikes and have modified Advanced Life Support gear. In addition to responding to medical emergencies, they will maintain defibrillators throughout the terminals and establish triage areas in the event of mass-casualty incidents.

Other areas of the airport, such as the Tarmac, will continue to use ambulance vehicles for response.

“We’re excited about this program and believe it will really help enhance our medical response capabilities,” Yakel said. “The goal is to have the program up and running by the end of March.”

Who Knew?

Did you know that San Francisco International Airport has been featured in a number of films throughout the years? Some of the more famous ones include Bullitt (1968), Magnum Force (1973), High Anxiety (1977) and, more recently, Godzilla (2014) and Steve Jobs (2015).
